

About Us

The Sir Frank Macfarlane Burnet Library Service provides a quality service to all health professionals, including medical, allied health and nursing clinicians. Health science students on placement and non-clinical staff are also welcome.

The library service strives to meet organisational information needs by providing accurate, current, relevant and evidence-based resources to support the best patient care, staff professional development and research activities within the organisation.

Sir Frank Macfarlane Burnet

Frank Macfarlane Burnet was born in Traralgon, Victoria on 3 September 1899. After receiving his Doctor of Medicine degree from the University of Melbourne in 1924 and his PhD from the University of London in 1928, he went on to conduct pioneering research in microbiology and immunology.

In 1960, he won a Nobel Prize for predicting acquired immune tolerance. The same year he was made the first Australian of the Year; and in 1978 he was made a Knight of the Order of Australia for his contributions to Australian science.
